Editor's Notes

I would like to thank the number of readers who took the time to comment about the tribute I wrote to my grandmother in the last issue. It was gratifying to know that so many of you appreciated this personal glimpse, and I enjoyed hearing of similar influences.

And on April 12th, another influential factor in my life ended when my father passed away. Dad was not a phonograph or record enthusiast, but was generally supportive of my hobby - although somewhat bewildered by it! Although the only records he ever remembered buying were Hit-of-the-Weeks, he enjoyed reminiscing about bands he grew up with during his college years: Coon-Sanders, Fletcher Henderson, Edwin J. McEnelly, Cab Calloway, etc. But for so many more obvious reasons, he will be greatly missed by your editor.

I regret that it was necessary to increase prices with the last issue, but this step would not have been taken if it hadn't become absolutely necessary. Revenues from subscriptions and advertising just haven't offset the costs of production, and each issue was taking a bit more from personal funds. We will endeavor to return good value for your subscription and advertising dollar.

The GRAPHIC now has over 500 subscribers! Have a good spring.

HERE & THERE

Tom Hawthorn makes an interesting addition to Archer Gibson's Victor Discography in our last issue. The label reads "On the NBC Record/played especially for NBC by Archer Gibson, organist/National Broadcasting Co.—an RCA Service." Side 1 (mx. 017396-1) plays "O Come, All Ye Faithful" and "Silent Night." Side 2 (matrix not identified) opens with Gibson playing "The First Nowell," fading into an introductory speech by an announcer with Christmas greetings and mention of the 11th anniversary of NBC and the blue and red networks. He then introduces Mr. Lenox Lore (?), president of NBC who also sends Christmas wishes. The record dates from 1937.

We just received word from Steve Ramm that Hal C. Birdsall, whose Hobbies index appears in this issue, died on April 19 at age 37. Hal will be remembered by his many collector friends for his extensive collection of Len Spencer records which was left to the Library of Congress. Readers who wish to make contributions in his memory may do so to either the Edison Birthplace in Milan, Ohio or the American Cancer Society.

California readers: If you're a customer of the California Federal Bank, you may have received their 1983 calendar entitled "You're Better Off in California..." (reader Jim Constantian remarked "We are?"). Anyway, the cover shows a balloonist, two snow skiers along a stream, and a handsome Victorian house. While we're not sure about the location of the balloonist or the two skiers, we do know that the house actually sits in St. Johnsbury, Vermont — just a few doors up from the old address of The New Amberola Graphic! As Bert Williams sang over 60 years ago, "It's gettin' so you can't trust nobody none of the time."

Frank Moon writes that he has traced another Indestructible 4-minute cylinder to its U. S. Everlasting original (see GRAPHIC no. 24). Indes. 3295, "All Night Long" by Edna Brown, shows the original U.S.E. number 1647.

Gary Mattscheck sent us details of an interesting record in the collection of his friend Arthur Paré. Apparently it was a souvenir from the 1927 musical "Golden Dawn," produced by Cameo of all companies. Full details as follows:— Golden Dawn S-1. Gems — "Dawn" Intro: "The Whip" (Harbach-Hammerstein 2nd-Kalman-Stothart) — Fox Trot with Vocal Refrain — Robert C. Haring and His Orchestra (mx. 2703 — take not noted). Readers may wish to add this number to Bob Haring's entry in Brian Rust's The American Dance Band Discography.

John Sam Lewis writes: "My wife and I spent our week long spring holiday in historic, scenic Jefferson, Texas, which, it turns out, was the home town of one Marion T. Slaughter, a.k.a. Vernon Dalhart. Dalhart began his singing career in a bar located across the street from our hotel (a house of ill repute operated on the floor above). The bar is now an ice cream parlor. What a bringdown! but at least the ice cream is delicious. Jefferson is now bone dry apparently—since I am a teetotaler it matters not. Jefferson is now a tourist trap with a population of about 2400 — in its palmy days the population was 35,000."

Three notable personalities died this past month, and, coincidentally, all three recorded for Victor within a period of 15 months. Dolores Del Rio, the glamorous star of silent and sound pictures, recorded two versions of "Ramona" on May 6, 1928. The English version was issued as Red Seal 4053, while the Spanish rendition came out on 4054; both were backed with the Spanish song "Ya Va Cayendo." The English version turns up occasionally and can be quickly spotted because of the facsimile signature on the label. Unfortunately, it is a rather poor recording, suffering from poor diction and pitch problems.

Although he had already recorded for QRS and Okeh, Earl Hines' first Victor records under his own name were "Sweet Ella May" and "Everybody Loves My Baby" made on February 13, 1929 (Victors 22842 & V-38042). The great jazz pianist made hundreds of recordings since then, remaining active until very recently.

Gloria Swanson's first recordings were of Toselli's "Serenade" and "Love (Your Spell is Everywhere)", featured in her 1929 film "The Trespasser." They were recorded on August 3, 1929 and issued on Victor 22079. Of this record, the November, 1929 Victor supplement said: "The advent of the talkie found some movie stars sadly wanting in vocal ability...but not Gloria Swanson! She has a beautiful voice that will add materially to the appeal of her already popular screen artistry."

Ronald Kramer would like to know if anyone has ever published a complete listing of roller organ cob numbers and titles. (Good grief! Would we have to call it a "cobography"?) If anyone can help him locate such a listing, please contact him at 131 North Shore Drive, Syracuse, IN 46567.

John Petty has available various styles of stroboscopes for cylinder phonographs at $1.00 plus SASE. They are available in speeds of 120, 144, and 160 rpm, in small and large sizes, and in 50 and 60 cycles. Write to him at Rt. 1, Box 54-A, Catawba, NC 28609.

Finally, John Heliker would like to know if anyone has any discs or cylinders, either private or commercial, by Pauline, Josephine, Mildred or Harold Pauli. They were distant relatives of John's who sang on the stage from the turn of the century into the 1920's. John would like to hear from any readers who may have memorabilia or recordings of any members of the Pauli family. His address is 252 West 10 St., Apt. 15, New York, NY 10014.

For over forty years, Jim Walsh has conducted the "Favorite Pioneer Recording Artists" department for Hobbies magazine, making him the undisputed dean of record historians. Some years ago we printed a chronological index to his articles. While this was very helpful to readers, it was sometimes difficult to locate specific artists or topics.

Thanks to Hal Birdsall and John Petty, we are now able to present a new alphabetical index to the "Favorite Pioneer Recording Artists" series. This index will be found on the next four pages.

Urna fatale del mio destino (Fatal urn of my destiny)—La Forza del Destino, Verdi, Baritone, in Italian, orch. acc. Mario Laurenti No. 29059

This opera "La Forza del Destino" (The Force of Destiny), is not one of the most popular of Verdi's operas, because it is so filled with horrors and death that, as one critic remarked, "all of the characters having died, there seems to be no excuse for going on with the play." But the score is filled with beautiful melodies. The gloomy story of the plot was taken from the drama written by the Duke of Rivas, which was entitled "Don Alvaro o la Fuerza del Sino." Of late years interest has been revived in this opera through its regular presentation at the Metropolitan, in New York.

The aria given on this record is sung by the character Carlos, in the third act. Carlos is the brother of the heroine and this number is a leading one in the opera. Mario Laurenti sings it impressively.

In mezzo al mare (On the Sea), De Luca Baritone, in Italian, orch. acc.

Mario Laurenti No. 29071

This is a boatman's song, as its title, "In mezzo al mare" ("On the Sea") would indicate. It is not, however, the sailor in a rough or turbulent feeling who sings "In mezzo al mare," but one in a romantic mood. The song is so appealing that the listener finds himself under its spell almost from the opening notes of the prelude.

Nina, Pergolesi, Baritone, in Italian, orch. acc. Mario Laurenti No. 29077

Pergolesi was an Italian composer of the early eighteenth century. He wrote numerous operas and much sacred music, but "Nina," sometimes called "Tre giorni," ("Three Days"), is the melody associated with his name that will live longest. This musician had a most romantic history, and he died at the early age of twenty-six. Mario Laurenti, the popular baritone of the Metropolitan Opera Company, sings "Nina" with all the melancholy sweetness it demands.

Mario Laurenti sings in comparison with the New Edison in Albany (date unknown)

Mario Laurenti: A Record Collector's Baritone

By D. E. Ferrara

Many famous baritones were equally as famous on the operatic stage as well as in the recording studio (i.e. Mattia Battistini, Giuseppe De Luca, Titta Ruffo, and Riccardo Stracciari to name but only a few such great artists).

Mario Laurenti, nee Luigi Cavadani, however, was more famous as a recording artist in the Edison studios than on the operatic stage. He sang at the Metropolitan Opera House for six years (1916-1922), and one season with the Antonio Scotti Opera Company on tour (1920-21). However, Laurenti was basically a comprimario singer at his sudden death in 1922; that is, Laurenti sang the smaller walk on roles in major operatic productions. Yet, his art is still appreciated by record collectors who enjoy Edison Diamond Discs and Royal Purple cylinders.

Mario Laurenti was born in Verona, Italy; the exact birthdate is not known, only the year, 1890. He was sent to Dresden to study engineering. While in Germany, Laurenti became interested in music. He studied privately and came to the United States in 1914. He found employment singing in the chorus at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York. His work was not left unnoticed and the very young artist made his official debut in the comprimario role of the Innkeeper in Puccini's opera Manon Lescaut, on November 16, 1916. The cast included Enrico Caruso, Frances Alda, and Antonio Scotti. A partial list of Mario Laurenti's comprimario roles include: Marquis d'Obigny (La Traviata, 11-17-17); Morales (Carmen, 11-29-17); The Sheriff (Martha, 11-21-17); De Bretigny (Manon, 2-9-21).

As an up and coming artist, the baritone sang in many new novelties at the Metropolitan Opera House. A partial list of such operas include: A concert performance of St. Francis of Assisi (Adriano Ariani, 4-15-17); The Canterbury Pilgrims (De Koven, 3-8-17); Gianni Schicchi (Puccini, 12-17-19); L'Oiseau Bleu (Albert Wolff, 12-27-19); First Metropolitan performance of Zaza (Leoncavallo, 1-16-20); First Met performance of Louise (Charpentier, 1-15-21); and the first Met production of Andrea Chenier (Giordano, 3-7-21).

Mario Laurenti also sang on the Sunday evening concerts which were extremely popular sixty years ago at the Metropolitan Opera House. A typical concert on December 22, 1918 consisted of an aria, Dio di Juda (Verdi's Nabucco), L'Ultima Canzone (Tosti) and Villanella (Sibella); he sang in concert performances of select operatic scenes from select operas: December 25, 1921, Act 2, scene two from Lucia; Act 3, La Traviata as Germont. Mario Laurenti's final role was that of Fleville in Andrea Chenier on February 20, 1922, with Claudia Muzio, Beniamino Gigli, and Giuseppe Danise.

The baritone's brief career ended while on concert tour. Laurenti started a series of recitals in New York state. It was during a recital in Syracuse, New York, that he developed a cold. Returning to his New York residence, he became more ill. The cold developed into a streptococcus infection from an ear abscess. He went into the Ear and Throat Hospital, New York; however, without the aid of modern drugs such as penicillin and antibiotics, the doctors were powerless to arrest the malady. The artist died from complications of spinal meningitis of Tuesday, March 7, 1922. He was buried from Campbell Funeral

We are happy to revive this column which was begun some years ago by the late Bob Stone. Dennis Ferrara will be contributing biographical sketches of some of the lesser-known Edison artists, complemented by their Edison discographies. Readers wishing to correspond with Mr. Ferrara may contact him at 1172 Normandy Terrace, Flint, MI 48504.

Home, Broadway at 66th Street, New York, on Thursday, March 9, 1922. A special memorial service was conducted with many artists from the Metropolitan Opera House in attendance. Mario Laurenti left a wife and two children.

It is difficult to assess a career which ended so tragically in 1922 at the age of 32; however, Laurenti's career was growing and more important roles were coming to him. No doubt radio would have helped bring the baritone's voice to a larger audience. Nevertheless, Laurenti's art was available through the phonograph. He signed separate contracts with the Edison Company to give Tone Test Recitals. In fact, Edison issued a special booklet, one of many, entitled "What the Critics Say," which listed glowing reviews about Tone Tests and select artists such as Anna Case, Marie Rappold, and Carolina Lazzari. The booklet covers show Mario Laurenti giving a Tone Test recital before an actual audience in Albany, New York.

The baritone signed an exclusive two year recording contract with Edison. The contract ran from May 1, 1919 until May 31, 1921. The contract stated that twelve selections would be recorded per year with three master recordings to be made of each selection. It is fortunate that Mario Laurenti was not asked to record the perennial pot boiler "mother, home, and heaven" favorites of Thomas Alva Edison which befell Laurenti's counter-part at Edison, Thomas Chalmers. Sad to say, for the most part, the entire Edison catalogue reflected a lack of musical taste and understanding of good music. It was quite apparent that the company needed a baritone to record select arias and Italian songs to compete with another company's Red Seal issues: namely, the Victor Talking Machine.

Mario Laurenti was a good choice. The recordings reflect a fresh voice with fine phrasing, nuance, and strong musicianship. While the recordings are not definitive performances of the select arias and songs, the well recorded selections are nevertheless extremely musical and stand up with any contemporary baritone recordings of the time.

The recordings are divided into the following: twelve operatic selections (including the one unpublished Ernani aria); four operatic duets (one each with Claudia Muzio, Marie Rappold, Marie Tiffany, and Carolina Lazzari); one unpublished ensemble of the Lucia Sextet; one song in French; twelve Italian songs; and five songs in English. This totals thirty-four sides with two unpublished selections. Combine these existing titles with alternate takes per selection, and record collectors have an opportunity to examine in greater depth that which was the Art of Mario Laurenti.

Special credit must be given to Mrs. Leah Burt, Archive Librarian, at the Edison National Historic Site, in giving valuable assistance and information in making this article possible. The author would like to also thank the patient staff of the Arts, Music, and Drama Department of the Flint Public Library in obtaining old magazine articles on Mario Laurenti.

Tosti was one of the best contemporary composers of Italian songs, inasmuch as the richness and beauty of his melodies truly express the deepest Italian sentiments. To the great sorrow of all music lovers, he recently died in Italy.

Mario Laurenti

"MY DREAMS" is one of the most beautiful of the many songs composed by Paolo Tosti. The lyric and the music describe very vividly the emotions of a love enthralled heart. Toward the end of

We know of no other Edison artist who wrote his own "liner notes," although Laurenti did not write his own on all issues. Note that he claimed that he decided to record the selection "I Did Not Know." If this was indeed the case, he was granted a privilege rarely given to others!

IN REVIEW

Look for the Dog — An Illustrated Guide to Victor Talking Machines, by Robert W. Baumbach

Phonograph and record collectors are so much luckier nowadays than their counterparts of twenty years ago when it comes to reference materials! In addition to the current library of books comes Robert Baumbach's most welcome guide to the Victor machines.

Basically, the book illustrates and describes every Victor model from the birth of the Victor Talking Machine Company until its sale to RCA in 1929. We are therefore able to follow the development of the Victor instruments from the open horn models through various Victrolas, ending with the Orthophonic and Electrola styles. Each model is dealt with individually, usually one per page with an illustration, a description of the basic style, equipment, price, and so forth. The author notes that many of the models underwent subtle changes during their lives, and it is not possible to detail and illustrate every minute change; however, every standard model is shown and important changes are noted (the most significant one appears to be the Victrola X which started its life in 1910 as a table model, had four legs and a shelf added in 1912, and finally became a full-fledged floor model in 1913!).

In addition to all of the standard models, including automatic instruments from the latter Twenties which frequently cost as much as an automobile, the author has included some specially designed and period styles for reference. Included here are seven models of a Victrola design I never knew existed before now. This style has the basic design of an upright Victrola with a tall storage compartment added on either side. This six-door model was available only on special order in such styles as Queen Anne, Chippendale and Sheraton.

If this book were just a guide to all the models produced by Victor, it would stand as quite an accomplishment. Happily, it is much more! There is a brief history of the birth of Victor, as well as histories of the development of the Victrola and the Orthophonic and electric models. There is an illustrated tour of the Victor factory in 1917; there are Victor accessories; there are illustrated patents of experimental models (including a Victrola with the horn built into the lid!); there are over sixty pages which reproduce Victor service notes on repairing and adjusting such things as motors, sound boxes, speakers, and even two types of the changing mechanism; there are also notes on the various cabinet finishes and how to retouch them.

Look for the Dog is a worthwhile and valuable addition to any collection. Its only drawback is that a few of the illustrations are somewhat dark, obscuring the detail on some machines. Perhaps this was due to the originals being that way. The book has over 300 pages of Victor-Victrola information and is handsomely bound in dark green covers with gilt lettering. It is available at $19.95 plus $1.50 postage and handling (plus tax in California) directly from the author, Robert W. Baumbach, P. O. Box 207, Woodland Hills, California 91364.

Off The Record; or "Play That Part Again!"

Regarding the Jolson record of "Wanita" (Columbia A3812, take 1) mentioned in GRAPHIC no. 42, John Black writes that he has heard the record several times and always transcribed the remark heard at the end as "Stand aside." Too bad it's not just a bit more distinct!

George Blacker writes: "ARC master 11723-1, seen by me on Perfect 15602-A (it must have had co-issues such as Banner and Oriole) is a rendition of 'Crazy People' by Eddie Kirkeby's Orchestra. Vocalist Fran Frey gives out with a weird-sounding maniac's laugh about 25-30 seconds into the start of the record and again at the very end. It sounds to me as if he almost forgot his musical cue to laugh at the beginning of the record, because he can be clearly heard saying 'Oh!' just before he goes into the laugh, and somehow I just don't think he was SUPPOSED to do that!" An alternate take of this selection was made at the same time with vocal by Chick Bullock, issued on Melotone M-12363; it would be interesting to compare this with the Frey version.

Listen for Emma Calvé utter "Oooh!" as the last piano notes die away on her "Plaisir d'Amour" (12" Victor no. 88134 - no visible take number).

Jim Constantian draws our attention to an early entry for our column this month. It is a single-sided Monarch, no. 2704, "The Dashing Cavalier" by Miss Frencelli and Mr. Lewis. Just before Mr. Lewis comes in, Miss Frencelli can be heard to say "Now" softly. Apparently he wasn't familiar with the selection and needed to get his cue from the female lead.

Some issues ago we asked whether any of our readers could hear ghost voices in the blank areas of two Edison Records—one Diamond Disc and one Blue Amberol. We are still curious to know whether other copies of these records contain the same ghost voices (or indeed don't contain them). Please refer to GRAPHIC no. 40, page 5 for details, and let us know what you hear—or don't hear—if you have these same records.

CATALOGUE REPRINTS

"List of the Famous Columbia Records", June, 1897. An exact reprint of an extremely rare 12-page catalogue of early brown wax records. Pages measure 6½ by 9 inches. Invaluable reference for the cylinder collector and record historian. Printed on durable paper. 75¢ plus 20¢ postage

Emerson Records, 1917. A faithful reproduction of the first catalogue of Emerson seven-inch records. Of special interest are three pages of information about Victor H. Emerson, the company, and the Emerson pricing philosophy, making "Music for All" their motto. Several illustrations of Emerson artists (though some are dark as in the original) and printed on paper superior to the original. 24 pages. 90¢ plus 20¢ Order both catalogues for $1.75 postpaid.

Flea Markets are Just Around the Corner!

If you wear one of our beautiful, bright yellow Haynes 100% cotton "Beefy-T" t-shirts to a flea market, we guarantee the dealers will readily identify your hobby. Stand out in a crowd wherever you go this summer!

The Haynes "Beefy-T" has a heavier knit than standard shirts.

Sizes: S (34-36), M (38-40), L (42-44) and XL (46-48). Keep in mind that cotton will shrink, so shirts may seem a bit large before washing.

FOR "78" COLLECTORS ONLY

By special arrangement, Old Masters, is proud to make available some of the rarest surviving 78 R.P.M. recordings of the century.

These custom pressings, manufactured exclusively for Old Masters by MCA and RCA records, have not been remastered but pressed from the original stampers on pure vinyl to capture some of the finest performances in recorded history.

In the past, the shellac material utilized in the original pressings produced a high level of surface noise which obscured the quality of the recording. Without this added noise, these vinyl 78's realize a fidelity which connoisseurs of vintage recordings will truly appreciate and admire. They are first generation so that the superior sound quality is immediately apparent.

Culled from the vaults of Victor, Gennett, Brunswick, Decca, Paramount and others, come many previously unissued and alternate takes.

These significant moments in jazz, opera, blues, personality and country have been tastefully executed into limited, hand numbered editions, in an attractive box featuring twelve records in each set, with twenty-four selections in all.

Traditionally, limited editions have increased in value over the years for their owners.

Therefore, Old

Masters, takes particular delight in presenting the rarest of opportunities to add these extraordinary limited edition pressings to your collection.

If you could find these records in their original editions, the purchase price would far exceed the nominal cost for which Old Masters is offering them!

With only one pressing, these limited editions will be sought after in years to come, not to mention the certain increase in value of these rare premium collectors items!

The first set, scheduled for release in fall 1982, will be "Classic Jazz" featuring such legends as Alphons Trent, Jimmy Blythe, Albert Wynn, Junie Cobb and others. All orders will be filled on a first come, first serve basis. Not available in stores! Once again... this is a strictly limited offering!

BLUE AMBEROL RECORDINGS

Volume II, 1915-1929

Edison Blue Amberol Recordings Volume II is now available from APM Press, 502 East 17th Street, Brooklyn, NY 11226, or from Ron Dethlefsen, 3605 Christmas Tree Lane, Bakersfield, CA 93306.

This 512 page book is hardbound, printed on heavy glossy paper for a permanent addition to your library. There are over 2,000 references to Blue Amberol cylinders from original supplements and dealer lists. Many of these are in their original colors. The editor has included over 200 artists' photos, some never before published, plus photos of Amberola machines, recording studios, and chronologies of the Blue Amberols of the period, including popular, operatic and foreign recordings.

An important feature of the book is a 30-page chapter by Jim Walsh on Blue Amberol artists, with illustrations and autographs from the original Edison files at the Henry Ford Museum. And there are dozens of Blue Amberol record slips, Diamond Disc liner notes, and information on the manufacture of Blue Amberol Cylinders.

The edition is limited to 500 copies, each numbered and autographed by compiler/editor Ron Dethlefsen. Copies are $47.50, including postage and handling. (Volume I, 1912-1914 is still available at $24.95, including postage and handling.) ($28.95 after Sept. 1)
